In Competition Here Friday Night

Rolley Retains City Spelling Title; 7 Others Advance To Lisbon Finals

By BYRON EELLS

Mike Rolley retained his city spelling championship Friday night at East Junior High to lead a team of eight into the county finals next Friday night at Davidson Anderson High School in Lisbon.

The 13-year-old eighth-grader at Westgate Junior High, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Rolley of 824 Bradshaw Ave., won his second consecutive title after finishing as runnerup in 1963 and 1964 while a pupil at McKinley.

A word that has claimed many spellers in other bees — diphtheria — was the downfall of James Burgess of 1547 Globe St. Jim forgot the first "h" after he and Mike had battled through 56 words.

Young Rolley then won the championship with "compatible."

THE REMAINDER of the city contingent which will face 24 other spellers representing Wellsville, county schools, Salem, Lisbon, Leetonia, Columbiana and parochial schools for five berths in the district spell-down at Canton includes schoolmates of Rolley and Burgess from Westgate and East Junior Highs, two from Lincoln and lone representatives from Garfield and Pleasant Heights. Listed in the order they finished, they are:

Stephen Sulkes, 11, sixth grade at Lincoln, son of Dr. and Mrs. William Sulkes, 1201 Fairmont St.

Robert Brown, 12, sixth grade at Pleasant Heights, son of Mr. and Mrs. Colin Brown, 1865 Idaho Ave. Bob also participated in the county finals last year.

Ray Fickes, 11, sixth grade at Lincoln, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Fickes, 111 Beechwood Ave.

Andrew Bevan, 11, sixth grade at Garfield, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Bevan, 949 Monaca St.

Jane Davis, 13, seventh grade at Westgate Junior High, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Davis, 481 Orchard Grove Ave.

Kathy Kidder, 14, eighth grade at East Junior High, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chalmer E. Kidder, 1278 Erie St.

ROLLEY'S victory was at least the fourth consecutive spelling title for Westgate Junior High. Preceding Rolley as city champion were Gary Barringer, who finished third in the national spelling contest, in 1963 and Malcolm Ogilvie in 1964.

Barringer was one of the first to congratulate his former competitor after last night's bee had ended.

After Sulkes misspelled "envelope" in the 22nd round, Rolley and Burgess battled through 26 more rounds before the East Junior High student erred on "diphtheria."

Young Brown preceded Sulkes to the sidelines when he missed "diagraming" in the 15th round, while Fickes was ousted in the 11th round by "chlorophyll," a word almost as big as he is.

Bevan, Miss Davis and Kidder were sidelined in the 10th round.

After Christine Fletcher of Taft, one of two 10-year-olds in the bee, missed "emigration" in the 9th round to cut the field to the eight qualifiers for the Lisbon spell-down, Miss Kidder missed "alphabetical," Miss Davis went out on "courage" and Bevan joined the two girls on "medieval."

THE OTHER spellers in the order they went down and the word they missed were:

Ernest Thompson of Glenmoor, "disintegrate," also in the ninth round; Sharon Talbot of LaCroft, "thoroughly;" Corrine L. Wright of Horace Mann, "provincial;" Jeanette Davis of Neville, "petroleum;" Alice Obenour of Taft, "immovable;" Joyce Saling of McKinley, "glamorous;" Shirley Wyche of Horace Mann, "comedian;" Larry Robinson of Klondyke, "jewelry;" Debra Lynn Pride-more of Neville, "whistle;" Sheila Ward of Garfield, "tongue;" Terry Pinkerton of Westgate Elementary, "symbol."

Paula Herron of Klondyke, "denounce;" Cynthia Green of Glenmoor, "thermometer;" Arlene Flick of Pleasant Heights, "baldness;" Terry Vest of LaCroft, "subtraction;" Robin Reed of McKinley, "vitamin;" and Linda Waite of Westgate Elementary, "insure."

Robinson, 11-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. James Robinson, 2157 Pennsylvania Ave. Ext. and a sixth grader at Klondyke, was a last-minute replacement for Jeryl Lynn Kidder.

Asst. Supt. George Hargraves Jr. was the pronouncer for the bee, with Mrs. William J. Horger, Robert Arnold and Jackman Vodrey judges.

Arthur T. Thomas, editor of The Review, which sponsors the city bee, presided and presented the finalists with certificates of merit from the Blue and White Nonpareil Club.

The teachers' committee in charge of arrangements was headed by Mrs. Nancy Wetzel of Westgate Junior High. Other members were Mrs. Lillie Belle Leonard of Glenmoor, Mrs. Ruth Okazaki of Horace Mann, Mrs. Rachel Delaney of LaCroft and Phillip Hunt of East Junior High.

But Woman Says Expert 'All Wrong'

Flying Saucers Called Swamp Gas

DETROIT, Mich. (AP) — An expert's opinion that some of Michigan's unidentified flying objects — UFO — probably were swamp gases may have convinced the Air Force but not the people who saw them.

"I'm no professor, and I'm not as educated as him, but I think he's all wrong," Mrs. Frank Mannor said of Dr. J. Allen Hynek.

Hynek, a Northwestern University astrophysicist and scientific consultant for the Air Force, told a news conference Friday that sightings made on two specific days probably had stemmed from swamp gases.

He said his study had been confined to sightings made near Dexter March 20 by the Mannor family and by officers and at Hillsdale by 87 college coeds and the county Civil Defense director.

Dexter, a small community, is about 50 miles southwest of Detroit. Hillsdale is about 100 miles west.

Hynek said a photograph taken by a sheriff's deputy March 16 near Milan, several miles south of Dexter, showed the rising crescent moon and the planet Venus. The deputy said the two streaks of brilliant light on the photograph, identified by Hynek as the moon and planet, had been captured on film by his camera in a time exposure as he observed what he considered to be unidentified flying objects.

Numerous UFO sightings have been reported in Michigan, especially the southern lower portion, in recent weeks, many of them by law officers. Hynek said he had not investigated these because large enough groups had not witnessed them.

He said both the sightings he did investigate were in swampy areas — "most unlikely place for a visit from outer space" — and added the UFOs probably had resulted from spring thaws releasing trapped gases resulting from decomposing organic materials.

He added that in the Hillsdale case the sighting might have been assisted by youths playing pranks with flares. The remains of several flares were found near the college shortly after the sightings.

"There were no flares involved in this," said William Van Horn, Hillsdale County Civil Defense director.

He and the Hillsdale College coeds reported watching a white and red object — about 20 feet across — from dormitory wings for nearly three hours.

"I think I will disprove him (Hynek) in a few weeks," Van Horn said. "I also didn't care for the methods of investigation. I know no flares were involved."

Milton M. Ferguson, the college's director of public affairs, did not see the UFO but said he had been told of it by Dean of Women Kelly Hearn and the coeds.

"What they saw had no resemblance to rockets or flares," he said. "I don't know what it was, nor do the people who saw it, but this is trying to explain it away arbitrarily. The Air Force is going to get into trouble going on in this way. It seems a white wash."

At Dexter, Mrs. Mannor said, "I saw it (the UFO) with my own eyes. And my son and husband wouldn't lie. They saw it too. I think there's something going on the people don't know about. I'm scared. I want to pack up and move."

Said her husband: "There's nothing wrong with my eyes, and my son (Robert, 19) has 20-20 vision. We both can't be wrong."

Police Continue Quiz Into $92 Theft Here

Police are continuing their investigation into the Thursday night "stickup" of Golden Star Dairyland, which netted a middle-aged bandit about $92 after he threatened two women employees with a box which he said contained a gun.

The man forced the women outside and ordered them to walk north on Market St. He then ducked around the corner onto W. 5th St. and fled in a light green auto.

Mrs. Leota Davies of Huston Rd. was holding the cash in her hand as she relieved Mrs. Dorothy Ingram, 322 W. 5th St., at the delicatessen and bakery counter when the man approached.

Public Due Facts About Space Ride

Gemini 8 Failure Being Unfolded By Armstrong, Scott

MANNED SPACE CENTER. Houston, Tex. (AP) — Rested and ready, the Gemini 8 astronauts tell the public today the dramatic story of a tumbling ride through space, one in which they met and conquered danger.

Neil A. Armstrong and Air Force Maj. David R. Scott planned to discuss at a news conference history's first linkup in space between two vehicles, and the wild events that followed.

The two spacemen scheduled the conference after a week of detailed discussions of their first orbital flight with engineers and fellow astronauts at the Manned Spacecraft Center. They completed debriefings Friday.

Armstrong, a civilian, and Scott had a narrow escape March 16 when a small maneuvering rocket on their craft went wild, sending Gemini 8 into crazy gyrations.

Officials later pinned the problem to a short circuit in the spacecraft rocket system, apparently in the wiring.

The harrowing events came about 30 minutes after Gemini 8 had docked with an orbiting Agena rocket, a primary goal of the three-day flight. The spacecraft and Agena, rigidly locked nose-to-nose, suddenly began spinning and tumbling.

Armstrong, command pilot, describing the hair-raising events to alarmed controllers on earth said:

"We got serious problems here. We're tumbling end over end and we've disengaged from the Agena. It's a roll and we can't seem to turn anything off."

Finally, Armstrong resorted to his re-entry rocket system to stabilize the spacecraft after undocking. Controllers, bound by a rule in the space program that a flight must be terminated once the re-entry control rocket fuel is tapped, then ordered them back to earth.

Five Succeed In Climbing To Mt. Eiger

KLEINE SCHEIDEGG, Switzerland, (AP) — Defying slashing winds and bone-chilling cold, five daring Alpinists Friday became the first to conquer Mount Eiger by the vertical route of the North Wall.

Four Germans and a Scotsman fought up to the 13,036-foot summit of the triangular-shaped mountain, whose steep slopes over the years have cost the lives of 26 climbers.

The five made the final assault across a dangerous ice field, feeling their way through a blizzard as the temperature sank to 40 degrees below zero.

They sent their jubilant radio message at dusk. Joerg Lehne, 29, and Guenther Strobel, 24, were the first on top. They were followed by Siegfried Hupfauer, 24, Roland Vutteler, 23, and the Scotsman, Douglas Haston.

Foam Houses
You Can Buy 'Em In Prefab Form

PITTSBURGH, Pa. (AP) — Low-cost houses made of plastic foam are now a reality, thanks to a break-through employing chemicals derived by "cooking" aged pine stumps, a Pittsburgh chemist says.

You can buy them in prefabricated form and expand them into summer cottages or other structures, William C. Darr, of the Mobay Chemical Co., reported Friday to the American Chemical Society.

He said plastic foams — light in weight, but durable and also flame-resistant — long have offered great potential for use as construction materials.

Indeed, he said, they have had a relatively wide use in that way, but more extensive use has been hampered by their high costs.

But, now, he added, Mobay chemists have found that "low-cost chemical derivatives from the destructive distillation of pine stumps can be added to foam formulations, giving a cost reduction and improvement of physical properties."

He said costs of foam raw materials have been reduced by as much as 20 per cent by using the pine-stump chemicals as extenders of the plastic urethane foams instead of more costly wood-based extenders previously used.

Darr added: "An important consequence of this work is that natural products which would normally rot away are utilized and replace higher cost materials."

The foams have a wide variety of uses, from insulation for apartment buildings to use as "curtain walls," Darr said.

"A very recent development using slab foam is an accordion-like structure that can be shipped in a compact form and then expanded on the building site to produce an excellent low-cost building," he said.

"These and similar structures are being used by the military as temporary barracks, sent to underdeveloped countries as low-cost housing, and used in this country as summer cottages."

New Strongman Suharto

New Indonesian Cabinet Shaping

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — The list of Indonesia's new Cabinet members under strongman Lt. Gen. Suharto is almost complete and may be announced tonight, reliable sources said today.

The five-man Presidium which is forming the Cabinet was scheduled to meet with President Sukarno — now believed only a figurehead — at his summer palace, 40 miles south of Jakarta.

He may ask for changes in the proposed list but was not expected to raise any major objections, the sources said.

The new list probably will have 30 full Cabinet ministers and 30 deputy ministers entitled to sit with the Cabinet, the informants added. Sukarno's old Cabinet, considered pro-Communist, had 100 members.

The new group will have a six-man executive committee, the sources said.

Joining Suharto in the committee will be Dr. Johannes Leimena, who was second deputy premier in the old Cabinet; the Sultan of Jogjakarta, Hamengku Buwono, who is the economic coordinator; Adam Malik, acting foreign minister; Ruslan Abdulgani, public relations minister; and Kiai Idham Khalid, deputy chairman of the People's Consultative Assembly.

Suharto took over from Sukarno two weeks ago after students staged massive demonstrations against Communists in Sukarno's old Cabinet.

The No. 1 target of the protests was Foreign Minister and First Deputy Premier Subandrio.

Split Vote Occurs On $3,000

Commissioners OK Aid For 'Community College'

LISBON — The Columbiana County commissioners have authorized a total of $5,000 so far this year for the proposed Columbiana County Community College, Max Gard, president of the commissioners, said today.

The commissioners, in a split vote Thursday, approved $3,000 for the college, which is seeking a charter from the Ohio Board of Regents.

Commissioners Gard and Frank Wilson voted for the Thursday appropriation, while Commissioner James Boyd abstained from voting.

Boyd said this morning he did not think taxpayers' funds should be spent on an institution which is not yet in existence and has no definite assurance it will be granted a charter.

The commissioners in February approved $2,000 for the college.

Gard said he is not certain what the funds granted the trustees of the college were used for, but said there were expenses for travel and other operations.

He said some of the money probably was used to help pay the salary of Dr. Richard Whalen, hired by the trustees as a director of planning for the college.

Gard said considerable money has been pledged by private citizens toward operation of the college.

The commissioners in 1965 approved $3,000 for a survey of the county's higher education needs.

This makes a total of $8,000 which the commissioners have authorized for the county college program, Gard said.

Marine Unit Covered By Naval Fire

Leathernecks 30 Miles From City To Guard Shipping

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — U.S. forces in Viet Nam, closing out operations which have spent their force, demonstrated new mobility today with a thrust designed to protect the capital of Saigon itself.

U.S. Marines, normally based far to the north, leaped into the coast 30 miles southeast of Saigon in an area normally left to the South Vietnamese government troops.

They came ashore assigned to preserving shipping lanes into Saigon which have been attacked by the Viet Cong, and also had the double-barreled task of clearing out marshland long in the hands of the insurgents.

The assault by more than 1,200 Marines with covering naval fire encountered no resistance. It was the furthest south U.S. forces have operated as units and touched delicately on the delta area which the Saigon government insists on counting its own.

The amphibious landing was only a mile or two outside the IV Corps, commanded by the Vietnamese general staff which has only American advisers, but has access to U.S. air power and artillery.

While the Marines were jumping into new adventures, the 101st Airborne Division closed out Operation Harrison after a month-long search and destroy sweep northwest to Tuy Hoa on the South China seacoast.

The paratroopers took some casualties but in the course of clearing valuable rice-bearing areas claimed 274 Viet Cong killed, 29 captured and 167 weapons seized, including 16 heavy guns which required crews to handle such as mortars and recoilless rifles.

The U.S. Marines also terminated Operation Texas to the north between Chu Lai and Quang Ngai with an announced record of 404 Viet Cong killed, 39 captured and 21 weapons seized.

U.S. officers insisted they had enough evidence to support a belief that a Viet Cong regiment was smashed, two other battalions were hurt badly and upwards of 800 of the enemy were killed or wounded and carried away in the four-day fight.

Marches Set In Protest Of Viet Policy

NEW YORK (AP) — Thousands of demonstrators march in dozens of U.S. cities today to protest American involvement in the war in Viet Nam.

The marches, which began Friday, are another organized weekend of demonstrations billed as "International Days of Protest."

Demonstrations erupted Friday in cities across the country. Twenty persons were arrested in Boston and Chicago, and there were draft card burnings in Ann Arbor, Mich.

One of the biggest demonstrations today is in New York City, where the sponsors say an estimated 30,000 to 35,000 persons will parade down Fifth Avenue.

A fire bomb was hurled today into the headquarters of one of the groups participating in the Fifth Avenue march. No one was in the building at the time. A small fire was quickly extinguished.

Local Demonstration

Of Sweeper Canceled

A scheduled demonstration of a street sweeper for municipal officials Friday was canceled at the last minute after a breakdown developed in a truck hauling the machine to East Liverpool on a lowboy trailer.

The fan belt broke on the motor of a truck that was hauling the device from Cleveland along the Ohio Turnpike. By the time repairs had been completed, it was too late for the salesmen to demonstrate the machine in East Liverpool and still keep a scheduled appointment in Warren at 2 p.m. yesterday.

The firm made tentative arrangements to show the machine here next Tuesday. Made by a firm in California, it is distributed by the J. J. Turner Co. in Cleveland.

State Picture Seen Attractive

Ohio Gets Good Boost As Stock Exchange Site

NEW YORK (AP) — "The Ohio picture is an attractive one," the New York Stock Exchange's President Keith Funston told reporters after a visit by Buckeye officials boosting their state as a great location for the exchange.

Funston said Friday the exchange would consider Ohio along with offers from the governors of New Jersey and Connecticut if it decides to clear out in event New York City enacts Mayor John V. Lindsay's proposed stock transfer tax increase.

Gov. James A. Rhodes told Funston the Ohio Legislature could initiate by May 1967 a constitutional change to prohibit a stock transfer tax in Ohio.

Atty. Gen. William B. Saxbe, who accompanied Rhodes along with Mayors Ralph Locher of Cleveland and John Potter of Toledo, put in that the exchange would save $100 million from existing New York City taxes by relocating in Ohio.

Furthermore Ohio has no income tax "nor does it contemplate one," Saxbe added.

Rhodes remarked that there is "a general trend of American industry to decentralize" and Ohio would welcome "either in whole or in part" the exchange's operations.

The governor depicted Ohio as "the state with the greatest solvency in the nation."

Mayors Locher and Potter presented their cities' bids, saying Cleveland and Toledo are close to transportation and communication facilities.

Gov. Richard J. Hughes of New Jersey made a Garden State pitch with Funston too, saying his Legislature probably would ban stock transfer taxes if this would bring the exchange there.

Properly-Equipped Airlines

Due All-Weather Operations

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Aviation Agency is moving toward permitting all-weather operations by airlines whose planes are properly equipped.

But it says only three airlines have qualified under new rules which permit planes to land in low visibility at specified airports in weather which previously barred operations.

The FAA has certified only two kinds of jet planes used by the three airlines for this type of operation. In addition, only three airports have runways that are lighted enough to permit such low-visibility landings.

In 1958, the FAA set 300 feet of vertical visibility and 3,900 feet of horizontal visibility along the runway as the minimums for jet landings. In 1962, the minimums were reduced to 200 and 2,000 feet.

Now the agency has set up what it describes as a Category II that permits landings with 150 feet vertical visibility and 1,600 feet horizontal visibility. After a six-month trial period at each properly lighted airport, an airline could attempt landings at 100 feet vertical visibility and 1,200 feet horizontal visibility.

United Air Lines, Pan American Airways and American Airlines have been certified for the low-visibility landings. United and Pan American with Douglas DC8 aircraft and American with the Boeing 707-300 airplane.

The FAA said it soon will confer similar authority on Trans World Airlines.

Dulles International Airport near Washington, Greater Pittsburgh Airport and Oakland, Calif., International are the only airports that now have the necessary special equipment.

Nine other airports are expected to have the equipment within two years. They are Louisville, Ky.; Atlanta, Ga.; New York's John F. Kennedy; Chicago's O'Hare; Los Angeles International; Denver, Colo.; Seattle-Tacoma, Wash.; Newark, N.J.; and Houston, Tex.

Airline officials are unhappy, however, with the pace at which airports are installing new landing equipment. They put part of the blame on the FAA, which they say hasn't decided what type lighting will be required for the center line of runways.

By 1970, the FAA hopes to al-

Patrol Hunts Suspect In Auto Holdup

The Ohio Highway Patrol at Lisbon today said authorities are continuing a search for a young man who allegedly robbed a Rogers area man of $40 Friday night.

The victim was John C. Keller of Rogers R.D. 1, who said he was robbed at gunpoint by a young man he picked up hitchhiking on Route 7 about 100 yards north of Route 30 Friday at 5:30 p.m.

Keller said after the man got into his car he pulled a gun and demanded his money. The man then had Keller drive to the Clarkson Rd., near Rogers, where he got out and fled on foot.

Keller described the man as in his early 20's with black wavy hair, 170 pounds, about 5 feet 10 inches with a medium build and wearing a white jacket and black trousers.

At 'Mayor's Prayer Breakfast'

'God, Proper Influences' Termed Keys To Success

"Each of us has a great effect on the lives of others in a community," was the opening thought of the Rev. Kenneth W. Traxler, field representative for World Wide Pictures, when he spoke at the "Mayor's Prayer Breakfast" this morning in Hilbert Hall of the Trinity United Presbyterian Church. Sixty attended.

Rev. Traxler stressed that whatever success one attains, whatever one accomplishes, he does not attain by himself, but "by the help of God and the influence of others."

He termed a proper home life, respect of the flag and prayer as three essentials of a progressive and stable community.

He cautioned that a breakdown in the home leads to a "break" in the moral structure of the community; declared that our freedom does not give us the right to infringe on the rights of others, and emphasized the power of prayer from a united effort.

He challenged each person present to set aside 15 minutes each day to pray and ask God "for strength to do things we should as a citizen and as a parent to help the city and to guide our children."

The breakfast began with the invocation by Harold Maylone, followed with prayer and opening remarks by William H. Smith, general chairman; an Old Testament reading by Municipal Judge Samuel Chertoff; a New Testament reading by Mrs. Donna Wilson, member of City Council, and benediction by the Rev. H. Gene Toot, co-pastor of the host church.

Remarks were given by Mayor George E. Willshaw and City Auditor Lawrence Zollinger. Ralph Compas served as master of ceremonies.

Ernest Lowe sang "My Beloved Son," accompanied by his wife, Mrs. Gertrude Lowe.

The committee in charge of the arrangements included Compas of the Columbiana County Youth for Christ, who served as chairman; Frank Fluno, Dale Kidd and Smith, Trinity; Edward Hester, Harry McConville and Vincent Laneve, St. Aloysius Catholic Church; Delmar T. O'Hara, Steubenville District Methodist lay leader; Daniel Henderson, Second Baptist; Alwyn Purinton Jr., St. Stephen's Episcopal; Delmas Sanford, First Church of the Nazarene, and Nathan Weinbrein, Beth Shalom Congregation.

Beaver County's Progress Draws Praise From Tabor

John K. Tabor, Pennsylvania secretary of Commerce, boasted of the economic wealth of the commonwealth and lauded Beaver County for its contributions to that wealth during the annual meeting of the Beaver County Branch of the Pennsylvania Economy League Thursday night at the Broadhead Hotel in Beaver Falls.

Tabor said, "I must take my hat off to this county for its utilities, its industries, the industrial development groups and its people. Beaver County has moved on every front and it has done a magnificent job."

"This county has done everything that all of the others must do if the commonwealth is to resume its position among the others in the nation," he emphasized.

Tabor was introduced by C. D. Henderson, president of the Beaver Branch of the PEL, who presided. Guests also included Robert E. Shoup, vice chairman; James Williams, former Beaver County executive director, and Dr. Edwin C. Clarke, president of Geneva College.

More than 200 business, industrial and financial leaders of the county attended the dinner meeting.

Advancements which Tabor cited in Beaver County were the drop in unemployment from 11.2 per cent in January of 1963 to the present 4.3 per cent, the Beaver County Industrial Park, redevelopment project 70 and the Beaver Valley Expressway.

In discussing the economic standing of the state, Tabor explained, "The commonwealth has improved impressively. It has not ridden the national coatails, but has surpassed the national averages in a number of key indices."

Crediting rising employment, the secretary said, the average hours worked and rates of pay wages and salaries rose to a new record of 22.3 billion. The personal income increased 7.7 per cent to $32.1 billion, which he cited as "the most widely-used comprehensive measure of the state's economy."

"Expanding industries, lower unemployment rates and additional cuts in tax rates have helped to boost the economy of the commonwealth," he concluded.

FBI Joins Inquiry In Ohioville Car Case

The FBI has joined Ohioville police in the investigation involving a stolen car that was recovered late Thursday night on Lisbon Rd. in the borough.

Chief Bernard Zlatovich reported that he and Officer Mike Hayden recovered an abandoned 1964 Oldsmobile about 10:30 Thursday night, with New Jersey license plates.

It was discovered to have been stolen from Camden, N.J.

FBI officials entered the investigation because the car was driven across the state line.

Chemistry Set Tied To Fire In Home Here

A youngster's experiments with a chemistry set were blamed for a fire late Friday afternoon at an Ogden St. home.

Firemen said bedroom curtains were destroyed, the top of a dresser was damaged and there was smoke damage to the walls and ceiling at the home of Harry Price, 405 Ogden Ave. The chemicals in the experiment ignited and set fire to the curtains. Firemen received the alarm at 5:50 p.m.

Rusk Says Hatred Still Displayed

China Seen Not Serious In Improving U.S. Ties

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk says Red China isn't seriously interested in improving its relations with the United States.

The Chinese Communists continue to display "militancy, bitterness, hatred," Rusk said. He added U.S. officials "have to deal with the situation as we find it. And we do not find at the present time a serious interest in Peking in improvement of relations."

The secretary said "a good deal of Communist China's isolation is self-imposed." But he voiced strong hope that the world's nuclear power — including Red China — can move promptly toward a treaty to ban the spread of atomic arms.

At his first news conference in seven weeks, the secretary of state said Friday there is a "central underlying attitude" among nuclear nations that atomic "proliferation is dangerous and undesirable."

Rusk himself brought up the subject of possible Chinese participation in a nuclear ban.

The Soviet Union, the United States, Britain and France, "and possibly even Peking are agreed it's not a good thing to see the proliferation of nuclear weapons," he said.

Rusk said the United States is considering recognizing Communist-ruled Outer Mongolia, a pro-Soviet state tucked between the Soviet Union and China in mainland Asia. He declined to predict when action might be taken.

He also made these points at the news conference:

—The United States is urging its allies to go slow in selling to Communist China materials that might add to China's "situation of war." He referred to West European plans, announced in West Germany, to sell a $150-million steel plant to Red China.

—He knows of no Hanoi diplomatic moves to end the Viet Nam War. He said he hopes dissident elements in South Viet Nam can soon settle their differences.

—More systematic formal discussions with France are probable on President Charles de Gaulle's move to withdraw from the North Atlantic Treaty Organization defense system. He said France has not yet supplied detailed proposals needed for such negotiations.

—He has initiated an investigation of the State Department's practice of forwarding to U.S. embassies FBI requests for special watches on certain American citizens traveling abroad.

Mill Creek Historical Group Outlines 2 Major Objectives

The Mill Creek Valley Historical Association set up two major goals during a meeting of the board of directors Friday night at the home of Mrs. Grace Wilson of Aliquippa R.D. 1, the association's secretary.

Frank Kelsey, chairman of the finance committee, announced that first objective will be to furnish its temporary office to be located in the new library building under construction at the Penn State Extension campus in Monaca.

The second will be to construct a replica of the first Mill Creek Presbyterian Church at its original site in the Mill Creek Cemetery at Hookstown.

The organization also scheduled its membership drive from April 11 to May 1. A special meeting of the area chairmen of the membership campaign will be held April 4 at the home of Mrs. Wilson.

Anyone interested in the preservation of history is qualified to join the association, it was pointed out.

Mrs. Marshall Hoover, president, reported that the association will contact the proper authorities in an attempt to reopen the old Frankfort Springs area at Raccoon State Park to the public. The area, once a favorite spot for people in the area, has been neglected for several years and is now inaccessible to the public, she explained.

The association will endeavor to have the road leading to the site cleared and facilities provided for outings.

Clifford Morrow Jr. of Carnegie Tech, Pittsburgh, informed the directors that he will have the window display at the Greater Pittsburgh Airport completed by April 1. The society has been permitted use of the window by the Beaver County Tourist Association.

The next general membership meeting of the association will be June 3.

Columbiana Schools Ask Renewal Of Levy

The Columbiana Exempted Village School District filed a resolution Friday afternoon with the County Election Board asking a vote at the May 3 primaries on renewal of a 9.7-mill levy for five years to provide funds for current operating expenses.

The resolution enacted by the village Board of Education said the levy would be in effect for the tax years 1967-71, inclusive, which means the calendar years 1968-72.

The Columbiana County board also will certify the question to the Mahoning County Election Board, since the district overlaps into four precincts of Mahoning County.

Eight Demonstrators Convicted Of Rioting

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Eight civil rights demonstrators were convicted at a non-jury trial Friday on charges of rioting in connection with a demonstration at Pittsburgh's Civic Arena.

The demonstrators were arrested Aug. 18 and accused of rushing one of the arena's gates to protest the hiring practices of Local 5 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers during the production of the stage show "West Side Story."

The defense, contending the actions of the demonstrators didn't constitute a riot, indicated it would seek a new trial. Sentencing was delayed.

Why Can't The Reds Agree

Periodic reports of quarreling among Communists are reassuring to Americans. It is an article of faith in this country that if Communists can be kept fighting each other they will never stand shoulder to shoulder against non-Communists.

This belief has persisted since Marshal Tito stood up to Stalin — the first overt act of independence by a Communist leader. But did the split between Russia and Yugoslavia slow down the spread of communism? No.

Nevertheless, the idea persists that communism is going to be weakened drastically and ultimately destroyed by internal disagreements.

This has a counterpart in the equally strong belief among communists that capitalism is going to be weakened and ultimately destroyed by disagreements.

Russian Communists are buoyed up by reports of explosions inside the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Chinese communists must be overjoyed by every shred of evidence that the United States is tooting an uncertain trumpet in Southeastern Asia and its "allies" are showing no inclination to bleed and die for the American cause in that section of the world.

Americans gloat because Indonesia seems to have slipped away from the communists' grasp, but is it not believable that communists are gloating because U.S. efforts to sew up Latin America are inept and inconclusive?

If there were some point of vantage from which the marching and counter-marching of the competing forces of the world could be viewed objectively, would it not appear that the reach of both the capitalists and anti-capitalists — the communists and anti-communists — far exceeds their grasp?

Why can't the Reds agree?

No one is in a better position to explain why than the anti-reds, who can't agree either. They had their Tito; our side has its De Gaulle.

Our side loses would-be converts to capitalism, which they do not understand, and their side loses would-be converts to communism, which they do not understand.

Yet, would anyone deny that if all-out war began the dissidents would all stand shoulder to shoulder for the glory of a common cause, even if it meant Americans would stand shoulder to shoulder with Communists, as they did in World War II?

Waiting For The Next Move

If the U.S. Supreme Court had its hands full explaining what it meant to say in the school prayer decisions, it will find them full to overflowing when the time comes to say what it meant to say in the latest obscenity cases.

The Supreme Court is trying to uphold certain standards supposedly implicit in the American way of life against certain violations of those standards. The trouble is, the violations also are implicit in the American way of life — always have been.

Why, then, has the American way of life survived? What has enabled Americans to surmount the menace of obscenity? What has enabled other civilizations to withstand the ceaseless impact of all the obscenities that have boiled up in the cauldrons of human cussedness?

Mental balance is the answer.

Moral stability is the answer.

A sense of decency is the answer.

A sense of proportion is the answer.

Proscription by law is not the answer.

It is as absurd to think obscenity can be driven out of existence by laws and interpretations of law as it was to think hard liquor could be driven out of existence that way.

The Supreme Court has doubts of its own — 5-to-4 doubts. Whenever it strains the Constitution to accommodate desires not included in basic law, it is in danger of having to reverse its decision later. At best, it is in danger of having to explain and explain and explain what it meant as people waiting for a chance to distort every legal ruling pounce on every word and innuendo.

Before the Supreme Court has cleared up the mystery of what constitutes obscenity and lurid promotion of obscenity, its majority will wish it had refused to grasp the nettle.

Not Quite The Big Idea

Auto racing buffs are a-titter with excitement over the success of American-built racing cars in the grueling contests that determine the world championship.

These are road-racing contests. They are totally unlike the Indianapolis Speedway contest, which is held on an oval track under conditions that bear no resemblance to road-racing conditions.

Until very recent times, U.S.-made cars had no place in these contests. U.S. manufacturers weren't interested in road-racing.

They weren't interested in any kind of racing. So what made them change their mind?

It dawned on them that road-racing cars bearing their names would be wonderful advertising gimmicks, a point that had been proved in Europe, where the fame of certain ultra-expensive cars has been established on race courses.

This is contrary to the central theme of auto manufacturing in this country, which is the utilitarian value of autos mass-produced for mass consumption — vehicles made in such volume they can be sold for reasonable prices — vehicles made for use, not for speed.

This theme never has appealed to Europeans, who think of the auto as a playboy symbol and until recently have thought of it as one of the more exciting prerogatives of wealth.

Obviously, U.S. cars made for road-racing have nothing in common, except name, with U.S. cars made for utility, safety and convenience. But the gimmick is plain and it is intended to be plain — think of speed, speed and more speed when you think of the name.

One wonders. Does the left hand of auto manufacturing ever know what the right hand is doing? Do the safety people ever get together with the hazard people to talk things over?

It's An Every Day Occurrence

In its latest instance of scofflawing, Cleveland has turned up a driver with 47 traffic law violations since 1952.

Ten violations had been charged against this driver since his license was suspended in 1963. In his latest scrape with the law, he pleaded guilty to five traffic violations and 11 contempts of court and was sentenced for 109 days and fined $585.

This will keep him out of a car for 109 days. After that, he will be at large again. He should have been kept out of a car when his driver license was first suspended. Chances are he left the courtroom and drove home. The mere fact his license to drive was not valid made no difference. He drove anyway. Doesn't everybody?

Thousands — tens of thousands — of Ohioans drive with no licenses or with suspended licenses. How do they get away with it? Nothing could be simpler. They get into their autos and drive. Nothing to it.

They will do this until they lose their wheels along with their driver licenses. Either their cars should be impounded, or their car licenses should be taken away from them when their driver licenses are suspended. When they buy license plates, they should be required to prove their right to drive.

As long as chronic traffic offenders can walk out of the court room and drive home, you can bet they'll do it.

Purely Personal

I would not want to be the general counsel of the world's largest auto manufacturing concern whose president had just told the Senate he knew nothing about an investigation that caused him to crawl in public.

While waiting for baseball season to open, I think of football players hard at spring practice and basketball players who will be jumping all summer getting ready for next winter.

I was impressed by a description that said U.S. soldiers in South Viet Nam look upon the typical Viet Cong soldier as the size of a 14-year-old boy. Fiercely motivated 14-year-old boys, obviously.

It is interesting to retrace conversations and find why names and incidents with no special significance turn up in dreams the same night, or within a few nights.

One of the most attractive traits in others is the knack of acknowledging an introduction as if they were genuinely glad to meet you. Most acknowledgments are coldly perfunctory.

Here it is, last week in March, and I still haven't taken apart the lawnmower to see whether its illness is a job for the repairman or something any fool can tackle.

It would be fun for a smart lawyer to defend a chicken-killing dog using the argument lawyers fall back on to defend clients accused of murder — that the dog did not know it was wrong to kill chickens and could not have kept from doing it even if he had.

Another thing this country needs, along with a keener sense of reality about world politics, is a new set of expletives. I am tired of using threadbare words to express disgust, anger, frustration and impatience.

For shame! A municipal court judge suspended all but $17 of a $100 fine plus 30-day jail sentence for a creep convicted of harassing a Cleveland woman with obscenities over the telephone. The guy deserved the book.

It's a spooky thought, but aren't people looking for an auto they can smash up without getting killed?

The New York City newspaper rearrangement makes business sense, but I'm having trouble with the names — World Journal (from Journal-American and World-Telegram and Sun), and World Journal and Tribune (the new Sunday paper that combine the Sunday Herald Tribune and the Sunday Journal-American). Now, dear reader, you say them.

The revered U.S. Supreme Court is in over its raised eyebrows on that latest obscenity ruling. Obscenity is not something anyone can determine by law. It's a matter of individual taste.

Specter Inspector

New Mafia Crackdown Set

By Victor Riesel

It can happen on any big city street where Cosa Nostra "buttons" (troops) operate. It has happened frequently, though quietly.

It's happening, and it's making many a "boss" and "under boss" quite nervous.

Two FBI agents walk up to a Mafia "soldier" — a Joe Valachi type — and tell the hoodlum what they know about him. Then they offer him immunity from punishment for what usually are minor crimes if he would testify against the dons in the high command of the underworld.

This immunity barter is legal only if the small-time mobster had used a telephone, telegram or teletype in the commission of his crime. This is hard to prove. So immunities are hard to hand out.

Now the government seeks of the Congress new laws which would make such granting of immunity available on a far broader base to thugs who have been involved in interstate transportation of any other trans-state line aid to the syndicates or organized crime.

THE FEDERALS also want a law to protect prospective witnesses in government trials. A law is sought which would make possible broader wire tapping under court control, of course.

This is not some enforcement agency's whim. There's a war on — and in the past the record shows that the men identified by witnesses under oath with the eerie thing called the Cosa Nostra have attempted to shake down or mulct the government out of billions of dollars.

Nothing fazed them. They've put the arm on the Army, the Air Force, the Navy and even the Quartermaster's Division during past national crises.

Furthermore, many a purveyor of muscle is doing business as usual. For that, take the word of crusading, self-effacing Robert Morgenthau, U.S. attorney for the Southern District of New York. He now has five grand juries investigating hoodlum operations.

Though he will not discuss the jury probes, it's learned that one of them soon will result in the indictments of men who have used muscle to turn private garbage collecting in a New York suburb into a multi-million dollar racket. The toughs have had an assist from some "law enforcement" officials there.

THIS IS CALLED the "carting" industry. Those who control it also can control many a business, a union and even a community.

An old racket investigated by Sen. McClellan disclosed some years back that Mafia men had turned it into a $50 million business in just a handful of Northeastern states.

Mr. Morgenthau has been looking hard at other tough elements which have moved into the meat sales business. One of his probes comes up with none other than the acid-tongued Johnny Dio (Dioguardi), whose younger brother, Frankie, a Miami Beach night club owner, soon will be tried on charges of conspiring to import heroin worth upward of $20 million on the curbside market.

Johnny Dio apparently has done quite a kosher food business as a wholesaler catering to not always happy food shop proprietors. What Mr. Morgenthau wants to know is how convicted extortioner Dio, whose most recent stretch was in the Atlanta penitentiary, could do so well so fast against such tough competition in this food business.

How could the quick-fisted Dio, who Valachi said under oath was the man he came to when terror was needed in the old garment business, finance himself so swiftly in a new market?

DIO IS BUT ONE of the ex-labor racketeers being probed by the round-the-clock grand juries here. There is Carlo Gambino, who has waterfront connections as well as industrial contracts.

This is but one crowd in one metropolitan area. It's the same as the FBI agents discover whether they pick up a Cosa Nostra "soldier" in Pompano Beach, Fla., or Detroit, or Chicago or Pittsburgh.

Just imprisoning one big syndicate man doesn't stop the huge multi-billion dollar combined gambling, narcotics, industrial terror and extortion and labor rackets coalition.

In Chicago the alleged mob chief, Sam Giancana, has been in prison on a civil charge of refusing to reply to grand jury questions since last spring. He'll be in for months. But he keeps by his Omerta oath. He seems to prosper. So does his "business."

Only a new brace of modern laws can give the government the safeguarded powers it needs to protect the citizenry and its honest unions and legitimate businesses.

Through The Years

From The Review Files

THIRTY YEARS AGO — John W. Talbott of Newell, a contable for 12 years, announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination for justice of the peace in Grant District at the May primary.

Francis Lang, program chairman, introduced Frank W. Springer, assistant prosecuting attorney for Columbiana County, as the speaker during the meeting of the Rotary Club.

TWENTY YEARS AGO — M. W. Essex, former superintendent and high school principal here, was elected superintendent of schools at Ferndale, Mich.

Miss Ruth Strauas of W. 4th St. received her "cap" during exercises at Akron City Hospital, where she was a student nurse.

TEN YEARS AGO — Merrill Hall was re-appointed playground director for the Recreation Council.

Midland was one of 18 Ohio Valley communities ordered by the Water Sanitary Board of the Pennsylvania Department of Health to build sewage treatment plants.

EDITOR OF THE REVIEW:

There has been a great deal of discussion over the proposed founding of a Columbiana County community college. To my knowledge, very little, if any, as to the specifications on what a junior college is has appeared in any of the newspapers in the county.

As a trustee for said college I would like to state my views on the same in the hopes that you would print them. Thus, the citizens of this county and of each and every one of the cities will have a better chance to make up their own minds about such a college and what it can do.

Our community college is designed to give an academic course for the first two years, transferrable to other institutions of higher learning for a four-year course. In addition thereto, it will be designed to give a technical and vocational course for one or two years for such students who desire no more education after high school than this. Some of the courses that would be offered would be:

Business Management, Health Technology, IBM Machine Operations, Electronics, Surveying, Nursing and other fields for which the students or industry show a need.

The college will be locally administrated by Columbiana County residents as members of the Board of Trustees and thus will be flexible to meet any of these needs as they arise. It also will be open to industry for any specific course that they might desire for some of their employees or for persons who desire to better themselves in the jobs they already have.

WHAT TYPE OF students would most likely apply?

1.—It would be open to students who graduate in any part of their class, but would be particularly attractive to those who graduate in the second or lower third of their class and thus they would have a difficult time getting admittance to other colleges.

2.—To those students who desire merely to perfect themselves in a technical sense in some of the courses as above outlined.

3.—The adult who desires to better himself but must continue to work and earn a living.

4.—To the student who may have failed in another college and would thus be given a second chance. Incidentally, the aim of this college would be that all grades would be transferable to other institutions of higher learning and thus be accredited particularly for colleges in Ohio.

What is the advantage for a student to go to this College?

1.—Our tuition is aimed to be not over $360 for a full year, compared with other colleges.

2.—The student may live at home and either work or at least save the cost of living expenses elsewhere.

3.—The student who is not academically inclined may better himself and learn a more valuable skill that will enable him to seek and obtain jobs that are now going vacant for lack of trained employees.

What is the cost to the student?

1.—As above stated $360 is the maximum for a full year's tuition.

2.—To the taxpayer the $200 per year per student that the state is obligated to pay on state tuition.

3.—It is contemplated eventually, although not immediately, that the citizens would be asked to vote on a 1-mill levy to carry this college, and this would be ample. One mill is one dollar per thousand dollars. The average home in this county is valued at $4,000, which makes an average cost of about $4 per year for the average home owner.

THIS COUNTY HAS 107,000 people and 525 square miles. The location would be central in the county so that no student in the county would need travel more than about 18 miles over good roads to attend this college.

Plans — That in the not too distant future, to-wit; within the next five years there would be a permanent structure and a permanent campus for said college.

There is only one set of administrative costs for administrative heads to be paid.

These are two of the most cogent reasons for establishing a Community College as I see them.

I trust that the citizens of this county will give it some earnest consideration. If there are any other questions or facts that anyone would like to know about I would suggest they write to Dr. Richard Whalen, president - elect, Farmers National Bank Building, Lisbon, Ohio, who will answer them to the best of his ability. Caliber of education.

The teaching staff and caliber of teaching will meet those of any other college and, of course, will be approved by the State Board of Education.

A MOMENT OF MEDITATION

Ask Your Preacher For The Scripture.

The Bible clearly warns us of the danger of false teachers. We cannot follow a false teacher and be right when the day of Judgment comes. Jesus taught that the false teacher and the one who will listen to him will both be rejected by God. Mt. 15:14. Thus it is evident that we cannot be too careful in regard to our teachers of religion.

If a preacher is teaching the truth as it is revealed in the Word of God, he has no fear of investigation. In fact he would be happy if people would take the time to carefully examine his teaching in the light of the Word of God. Acts 17:11.

In view of this grave danger and the importance of being right in matters of religion, we suggest that you take the time to ask some questions of your preacher. If his doctrine is true, he will be happy to point to the scripture that teaches it. If it is not true, you need to know this. Remember, your soul is involved. You cannot afford to be wrong.

Let me suggest that you ask your preacher for the Scriptures that teach "infant baptism." Many mothers have been urged to have their babies baptized. If this teaching is according to the Bible, your preacher should be able to produce the passage. Notice these facts in regard to baptism. The Bible teaches that baptism is for a believer in Christ. When Jesus sent his disciples to preach the gospel, he told them to baptize the believers. "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved."

Mk. 16:16. We can see that his disciples kept this instruction by noticing Acts 16:30-33. In this example the Jailer of Philippi has asked what he must do to be saved. He is told that he must believe on the Lord Jesus Christ. He is then taught the Word of the Lord. After the Jailer has been taught so that he might be a believer, he is baptized. Thus The Word of God teaches that a believer is to be baptized. An infant cannot be a believer in Christ.

Baptism is also for those who have repented of their sins. According to Acts 2:38 people were told to "repent and be baptized." Repentance involves turning away from sins. Have you ever wondered what sins an infant has that he needs to repent of? The command to repent is given to people who have sins. Since an infant has no sins, he has no need for repentance. Thus there would be no reason for infant baptism.

Ask your preacher if he will give you the passage in the Bible that teaches that a baby should be baptized. Ask if there is any example of Jesus or his disciples baptizing a baby. The Bible is the only book that contains the Will of God. If we cannot show by the Bible that what we are teaching is true, we ought to give up such teaching. "Prove all things . . ." 1 Thess. 5:21.

Down With Despotism!

Independence Urged For East Liverpool Area

By ROBERT POPP

A CRUSADING Idaho congressman made a sweeping appeal here Friday night for the East Liverpool district to take itself out of the federal union of the United States and organize its own independent city-state as the answer to growing encroachment of the powers of the federal government.

Rep. Regardezmoi Tete de Bois, direct descendant of a Basque sheepherder and a Nez Perce Indian princess, declared that only by asserting independence and creating their own government and laws can contiguous local subdivisions break away from federal restraints "and exercise again that God-given freedom from arbitrary despotic sway on which the nation was founded."

He spoke to an audience of 500 that was obviously skeptical as he began his recital, then warmed to his argument and finally gave him an unprecedented farewell as he left the stage of the Memorial Auditorium.

An Independent who will be seeking a seventh term in the 12th District of Idaho in the fall elections, Tete de Bois declared bureaucratic rule "has reached the point where they are telling us what crops to plant, what prices to collect for them and when and where they shall be sold."

"Soon they will tell us how to part our hair and lace our shoes," he warned in his fiery preamble. "As a native-born son of the Old West, I resent this dictatorship and I am spreading my message of separatism from coast to coast."

"I can almost hear the legal-minded ones in the audience asking for precedents," the congressman declared after advancing the proposal for an independent republic.

"THERE ARE many precedents. The Free City of Danzig was one of the most enlightened, progressive and pleasant communities ever to flourish on the face of the earth. In the days of the city-state within their boundaries, Greece and the Italian peninsula reached their highest points of prosperity, culture and growth. It was only when they were combined into an unwieldy mass under central rule that they began to fade."

"First you must face the problem of financing your new government," Tete de Bois asserted. "The possibilities are limitless. As an independent republic, one of the first actions undoubtedly would be to issue your own postage stamps, coins and currency."

"Those actions alone should serve to finance all the normal operations of the government. Remember to issue the coins, stamps and currency in wholesale quantities, in endless varieties and denominations. Collectors from all over the world will buy your coins, stamps and currency."

"The chances of a phenomenal profit are obvious to everyone. Postage stamps can be printed at thousands for the dollar, but when they are sold at face value to collectors who will never use them, the income is virtually all clear profit."

"The possibilities are limitless, too, for realizing unheard-of profits on issuance of currency. It will be snapped up by dealers and speculators and stored safely in snap deposit boxes so that the republic never will be required to redeem it."

TETE DE BOIS also emphasized the financial windfall that would come to all the area's residents with the end of federal taxation—and state taxation, too.

"I estimate the standard of living would go up 20 per cent immediately, as that represents the minimum federal 'bite' of your residents' incomes at present," he said.

"Assuming there are 15,000 adult wage-earners in this community and they pay an average of $800 a year in federal income taxes, that represents $12 million that leaves this area and disappears into the bureaucratic maw in Washington, never to return," he said.

The complete termination of the federal tax would leave

$12 million a year to generate new steam in the local economy, he said. Or the tax rate could be cut in half and still the independent state would have $6 million on which to operate.

"If you administer the plan properly, it may be possible to grant everyone a pension, so that no resident ever would have to work again!" he declared.

Tete de Bois pointed out the creation of an independent republic would eliminate all other customary taxes paid by area residents, including the imposts of the county and state.

"Certain questions may be raised about the various benefits and services the people have grown to expect from the federal government, but all these hurdles can be cleared with a minimum of trouble," the congressman said.

"There are federal pensions, such as Social Security, and payments to farmers and various other subsidies that might be cut off if the area no longer was a part of the State of Ohio or the U.S.," Tete de Bois conceded.

But as an independent republic, the new autonomous government could apply to Washington for foreign aid. Since it no longer would be part of the U. S., he said, the republic would be classed as "foreign," eligible for all the largesse doled out with liberal hands to banana republics in Central America as well as to mighty empires and tottering dictatorships.

"Foreign aid is free and clear," he pointed out. "It never has to be paid back and there's virtually no check on how the funds are disbursed. The money could be used to set up one of the most beneficent welfare states ever to grace the face of the globe."

HE POINTED OUT there are many other sources of income awaiting a new republic. For instance, its residents would need visas to travel across the international boundary to work in places such as Midland, Chester and Newell. And residents of these areas would require passports and uncounted other costly documents in order to venture across the frontier.

"Who needs Medicare?" Tete de Bois said, as he turned to other aspects of the separation from the federal government. "The republic need only to apply to the United Nations to be showered with all kinds of medical assistance under the World Health Organization. There would be funds available, without restriction, for operating a health program for the republic that would make Medicare look like a backward, conservative plan, at best."

"Many other U.N. agencies would be anxious to hurry here to help you with problems ranging from education to sanitation and morris dancing. Truly, it seems as though this action might bring on the millennium in our own time."

"With the federal taxes eliminated imagine the savings on most of the goods and services we need everyday—automobiles, tires, luggage, jewelry, cosmetics and public transportation tickets—to name a few."

"I predict that gasoline would sell for 7 cents a gallon and cigarettes would be begging at 5 cents a pack, once all the taxes were removed. And whisky? Alcohol would be so cheap it would not seem like a luxury to get drunk anymore."

"WHO WILL RULE over this utopian republic? In an autonomous republic, dedicated to the old proposition that the least government is the best government only a titular ruler would be required."

"I suggest that you toss into a big container the names of every adult resident and select one by lot to rule as a constitutional monarch. He or she would have the same powers as Great Britain's monarchs—namely, none."

"For passing resolutions from time to time calling upon do-good international agencies to come in and bail you out of your troubles, you could constitute your Council as a lower house and designate the five oldest retired members of the IBOP to sit as a House of Lords."

"The possibilities for growth and development are limitless," Tete de Bois continued. "This republic, being outside the United States, would have that exotic appeal of foreign lands that sends so many Americans traveling abroad, spending prodigally for accommodations and services they would sneer at when at home."

"To cater to the tourist trade, you should set up some sidewalk cafes, allow a controlled amount of sewage and garbage to lie in the gutters and print all your menus in Sanskrit or Arabic. Teach your residents to speak with an affected accent, disregard strangers and walk with palms always outstretched, seeking tips."

"Give taxi drivers a short course in rudeness, disarrange all the waitresses' hair-dos and equip them with gravy-stained aprons. Water the wine, make all the omelettes of questionable eggs and take care that all the salad vegetables are wilted beyond recognition. Then the foreign tourists will feel at home, just as in France."

"Oh, yes, double all the prices for strangers, write the restaurant checks illegibly, add on a 50 per cent tip and then practice a withering stare for all who ask questions."

HE ADVANCED A proposal for establishment of a 17-man army, commanded by a major general, Pay, uniforms, weapons and training would be no problem, he asserted, as they would be furnished willingly by the U. S. The Army might be linked up with NATO or SEATO or both, he said.

"It might be wise to sign a mutual defense pact with the United States in case of aggression from another foreign power," Tete de Bois said. "But at the moment the threat of war seems unlikely for a new republic. Just set up an old boiler and smokestack in a back lot, call it a nuclear reactor, and everyone will let you alone."

He also proposed establishment of a Navy, pointing out that as an independent power, the republic would be empowered under international law to control the waters within three miles of its shores.

That precedent should give the new republic unquestioned control of the adjoining stretch of the Ohio River and open up other unlimited vistas, he said. Among other things, it would settle for all time West Virginia's claim that it controls the Ohio, he declared.

And if some downstream government acted belligerent, a truckload of Epsom salts could be dumped into the Ohio as a moving reply, he added.

As he neared the climax of his speech a certain aura of creosote, as though from sheep-dip, wafted through the hall. Brandishing his arms and throwing back an unruly lock of hair from his forehead, he unrolled a long strip of red, yellow and green cloth.

"THIS I PROPOSE as the background for your republic's banner," Tete de Bois shouted. "It should display a suitable emblem in the center, such as a question mark rampant over an impressionist sketch of Babb's Island."

"And around the four sides of the banner, I propose that you fashion in bold letters the motto of this new republic: 'Americans Prefer Republics! Inexhaustible Largess for Omniscent, Opprobrious Living.'"

"Or better yet, limit it to the initial letters of each word." "I know what that spells," a man shouted from the audience, as he hurled a rutabaga at the speaker's head.

"That's right," Tete de Bois shouted, retreating to the wings. "April Fool!"

A Day To Remember— An Evening To Forget

It is exactly nine years, three months and five days since one of the most extraordinary incidents — totally unreported in any of the tri-state district newspapers at the time — took place on Pennsylvania Ave. Just 100 yards west of the Pennsylvania state line.

John R. Ogden of Wellsville, R. D. 1, en route to Midland where he was employed at the Crucible Steel Co., noticed a greenish glow about the small sedan moving in front of his car as he passed the Putnam St. traffic signal.

Ogden, now 37 but with pure twitch in his left eye, recalls the auto began to slow and move toward the curb.

A GENTLE RAIN was falling from a darkly cloudy sky, and although his view of the car in front was obscured by the water on the windshield, he could see the shadow outline of the head and shoulders of the other driver.

The small auto came to a stop about four feet from the curb, partially blocking the east-bound lane and forcing Ogden to bring his car to a halt because oncoming traffic prevented his passing.

Ogden, glancing at his watch and realizing he was facing the possibility of being late for work, waited five, ten, fifteen seconds for the other car to move out — "The auto is stalled," he thought.

Finally, impatient, Ogden sounded the horn of his car. The other auto remained halted, but the greenish luminescence, which Ogden had believed was a light reflection off the metallic cast of the car, began to brighten.

OGDEN RUBBED his eyes, then wiped at the interior surface of his windshield, thinking it was starting to fog.

As the incandescence of the other car brightened, Ogden could see the silhouette of the driver turning toward the car's door.

And as Ogden watched, hypnotized by the strange glow and the unusual stopping of the car and apprehensive at what might happen, the door on the driver's side of the car slowly opened and stepping out into the falling rain, etched against the dark background of the street by the now fiery light of the the fantastic automobile was (Turn To CHOUSE, Page 24)

MAXWELL DUMB

Among the potential drop-outs at East Liverpool High School is Maxwell Dumb, 24-year-old junior who is president of the Tri-State Hubcap Stealers Club.

Maxwell, or Max or Sonny Gelb or Killer Smith or Mighty Dumb as he is affectionately called by his probation officer, is the only city student in history to have his head caught in the school front door three days in a row.

Maxwell is looking forward to a singing career, having learned to play three strings on his guitar and memorized the whole first line of "The Ballad Of Jack Horsley."

Food Favorites

A rather interesting spring stew for the lazy homemaker who watches television all day and isn't too eager to enchant her husband when he comes home from the office has been sent in by W. 6th St. resident who prefers not to reveal her name.

April Stew

1 cup leftover anything
½ teaspoon of sealing wax
1 can dogfood
1 pickle, sweet or sour
1 cup bread crumbs
1 box patching plaster
1½ Tsp. raw onion
1 can tomato paste
pinch marjoram

Mix leftover with dog food, stir in breadcrumbs, onion and marjoram and shape into loaf. Quarter pickle and lay on top.

Pour on tomato paste, throw away sealing wax — who ever heard of sealing wax in a meal?

Bake in 350 degree oven until middle of late afternoon movie. Serves plenty enough for anyone. . .

You're right, it sounds like a meal. The stew is what you'll find yourself in if you prepare this. Plaster is used to repair walls should you serve it to your husband.

Pittsburgh Building Hit By $10,000 Fire
PITTSBURGH (AP)—A fire of undetermined origin wrecked the interior of a vacant building on the city's North Side Friday night, causing damage estimated at $10,000.

The fast-spreading blaze in the 2½-story building was brought under control in less than an hour after five alarms were sounded.

No injuries were reported. The building, in the process of being ripped down, was occupied by the Italian Sons and Daughters of America until two months ago.

India's Premier Devotes Fulltime To Her 2 Sons

PARIS (AP)—Indira Gandhi planned to temporarily put aside her duties as prime minister of India today to be a full-time mother to her two sons.

Mrs. Gandhi arrived in Paris Friday, en route to Washington for an official visit and talks with President Johnson. She arrives in Washington Sunday and meets with Johnson Monday.

She had lunch with President Charles de Gaulle Friday and met with Premier Georges Pompidou.

A short time after Mrs. Gandhi stepped off the plane from New Delhi, her two sons, Rajeev, 21, and Sanjay, 19, arrived from London. The younger is attending an engineering school in England, and the older is following a training program in an automobile company. Both hope to become engineers.

The Indian Embassy said that Mrs. Gandhi had no official appointments today and would be free to do whatever she likes with her sons.

This is the first time that Mrs. Gandhi has left her country since taking over as prime minister. She has not seen her sons since taking office.

Bringing Up A Family

By DR. GARRY MYERS

Home Training Needed In Behaviour

In recent years I have been impressed with the many children I have seen in public eating places, whose relations with their parents are whole-some; children whose behavior is fine. Those families of several young children enjoying a mealtime with their parents have impressed me most. What I see in them was not acquired wholly by practice in public. While some practice helps, the factors explaining the wholesome behavior and relationships go back to their living together at home.

SEVERAL months ago while Mrs. Myers and I were vacationing at one of the Virgin Islands we had the privilege at several mealtimes to observe a wonderful family of young parents, and three children with ages about four, six and nine. They all seemed so relaxed and to enjoy conversation with one another. There was no quarreling among the children, no smarting - aleck behavior, no getting up and running about. Not once did I see or hear any one rebuked.

A few times we saw all of them on the beach and all the little children swimming well while the parents lolled on the sand. Just once I heard the mother call to one, "No farther out," and he obeyed. The youngsters there seemed to enjoy great freedom, yet we could see that there were limits. Not once did I see those youngsters playing at games of chase near where older persons were.

Several times we also enjoyed conversing with these children and their parents. The children spoke with great ease and naturalness. I found myself wishing that many other young parents might see this family together.

IN AIRPORTS, bus stations, and other places, one may see many samples of delightful relationships between young children old enough to run about, and their parents. The tenderness, kindness and patience of parents with young children is outstanding.

Occasionally, however, there are exceptions, when one may see toddlers and children from four to six or eight running and chasing one another about, often at the inconvenience and annoyance of other persons.

To illustrate, while Mrs. Myers and I were waiting for a plane in Miami, near us was a frail young mother with four children from about thirteen to six months. The mother held the baby and all the older children were kept busy keeping the toddler, about 2½, from running away from the rest and getting into all sorts of dangerous places. He had to be held in bonds physically. He kept no account of words from his mother or anybody else. It appeared that the mother assumed he was too little to respect the word "no."

WHEN THE older children despaired of "keeping" this tot, the mother with the infant in arms held him near her while he cried loudly and struggled to get loose, and everybody near was annoyed. Perhaps a good swat would have been effective. Yet that was no place to get him under control. He needed better control at home.

Many parents with open space about their home are worried that they have no fence about it to keep their young children from running into the street. Some parents at great expense will build some safety but there may be some persons who will leave the gate open. An invisible force can be safer.

The wise parent who skillfully trains her tot as soon as he can toddle not to go beyond certain defined limits like the curb can make him safer than if she built a fence. This invisible fence she can also use in ever so many other places.

My bulletins "Love and Restraint," "How to Teach Child Meaning of No," and "First Steps in Training Tot in Safety" may be secured by sending a self-addressed, stamped envelope to me in care of The Review.

Ky's Hoping For Election Before 1967

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—Premier Nguyen Cao Ky says he hopes that National Assembly elections will be held before the target date of late 1967.

Ky told a meeting of government officials Friday that if current military and civic action programs are completed earlier elections will be possible.

In previous speeches, Ky has said that elections for a civilian government conceivable could be held late next year. Buddhist and students demonstrators have been demanding a return to civilian government.

Ky, who is chief of South Viet Nam's air force, told the meeting that he was willing to hand over power to civilians "at any moment."

"I long for the day when I can return to the life of a pilot," he said.

Ky warned that a genuine legislative body "must be immune from infiltration by crypto-Communists and corrupt elements."

WASHINGTON (AP) — If the coat looks familiar, it's because it has been doing a bit of traveling.

The garment is Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson's famous inaugural ball evening coat. Mrs. Johnson wore it to an opening of the National Gallery of Art's 25th anniversary exhibition March 17.

Two days later daughter Lynda wore it at a birthday party given her in Hollywood by actor George Hamilton.

Daughter Luci Baines Johnson also was doing a bit of traveling. She, her fiancé, Airman Patrick Nugent, and a party of friends slipped into New York Friday night to see the musical "Skyscraper."

Luci, 18, wore a two-piece, pink brocade dress and watched the show, starring Julie Harris, from a back row orchestra seat.

LONDON (AP) — Prince Philip arrived in London Friday from his tour of North America and told newsmen that the Americans "didn't take an active dislike to me," adding: "This may be a rather upside down way of putting it."

Queen Elizabeth's husband, who flew in from Canada, said the Americans "were very kind, thoughtful and considerate — but they got a little muddled about why I was there."

Philip said he had to make it clear on more than one occasion that he was not in the United States as a salesman for British wares.

Asked if, during his U. S. tour, he had told a television newsmen to take "his bloody machine . . . and stuff it," the prince replied:

"They have a charming habit of waving this great listening device. You have the peeping Tom camera and now you have the eavesdropping microphone. I do not mind talking on or off the record but I object to being overheard when making a private conversation with someone. This chap came along and poked this damned stick (microphone) at me and I told him what to do with it."

Confident Of Courts' OK

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Officials of major banks in Toledo and Cincinnati have joined the storm-center Cleveland Trust Co. in expressing confidence the courts will uphold the practice of state banks voting shares of their own stock held in trust.

And the attorney general's office has declared that court is the place to settle the issue, indicating it will decline an Ohio legislative investigating committee's request for an opinion.

One dissenter, a Middletown man whose late father was a bank officer, testified as the committee at its third hearing Friday heard several witnesses backing Cleveland Trust's position.

The dissenter, Robert D. Oglesby, contended that Barnitz

Federal Jury Indicts

4 On Dope Charges

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A federal grand jury has indicted three men and a woman for the possession and transportation of marijuana.

Indicted yesterday were John J. Parker, 28, of the city's North Side; Ruth Jackson, 32, of the Brushton section; Lawrence Massey, of Bridgeport, Ohio, and Walter Byrd, 30, of nearby Crafton.

Federal narcotics agents estimated the marijuana had a retail value of about $71,000.

Contract On Road Oil Goes To Lisbon Firm

A contract to supply road oil to lay summer dust on unimproved streets and alleys has been awarded the Do-Mar Road Oil Co. of Lisbon, the same firm which supplied the city last summer, Safety - Service Director Robert E. Vordy said today.

The director and Mayor George E. Willshaw, who comprise the Board of Control, reached the decision after studying identical offers from the Lisbon concern, owned by H. Wendell Cole, and Allied Enterprises, Inc., of Canton.

Opened Monday, the bids of the two companies offered 50,000 gallons "more or less" at 9½ cents a gallon or a cost of $4,750.

Karch said his firm went to court Wednesday "to clear out the doubts that have been raised."

State Sen. Charles W. Whalen Jr., committee chairman, said a ruling by the Ohio Attorney General would be helpful even though the issue is in court, and the member legislators voted 11-1 asking him to request an opinion from Atty. Gen. William B. Saxbe. Rep. J. Harvey Weiss of Lancaster was the dissenter, with three members absent.

Saxbe's office commented that Ohio law prevents issuance of an opinion to the committee.

Far Ahead Of Recovery Schedule

Mantle Fans, But Team's Enthused On Appearance

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

For most batters, three strikes mean out. But for Mickey Mantle, three strikes mean he's back in.

Exactly two months after his right shoulder was operated on, Mantle stepped to the plate as a pinch hitter Friday in the New York Yankees' exhibition game against Philadelphia.

The ailment-plagued star struck out, but the Yankees, who won the game 7-6, were enthused. It was Mantle's first appearance in a game this spring, and it came far ahead of the schedule Mantle thought he would have to follow.

Manager Johnny Keane first got the idea for using Mantle while watching him hit the ball hard during batting practice. The 34-year-old veteran got his chance in the ninth inning with the game tied 6-6, one man on and one out.

Batting right-handed, he took the first pitch from left-hander Darold Knowles for a strike, then missed the second for another strike. He took a ball on the outside but then swung and missed for the third strike.

The early appearance, however, does not mean Mantle is ready to romp into his 16th year unhindered. He still has pain when swinging left-handed, and he doesn't know if he can throw.

Roger Repoz made the ball go far in the 10th inning, hitting a game-winning homer off Knowles.

The St. Louis Cardinals won their fifth straight game, edging Kansas City 2-1 on Tim McCarver's run-scoring single in the ninth inning. Mack Jones raced home as third baseman Eddie Kasko bobbled Denis Menke's grounder in the sixth inning, giving Atlanta a 4-3 victory over Houston.

Three Minnesota pitchers —

Camilo Pascual, Dwight Siebler and Pete Cimino — combined for a one-hitter as the Twins mauled Boston 9-0. Tony Conigliaro's fourth-inning double off Pascual was the only hit for the Red Sox, who lost their seventh straight.

Fred Valentine and Frank Howard drove in five runs with three-inning homers as Washington defeated Pittsburgh 7-4, and Cincinnati downed Detroit 7-5 with Leo Cardenas knocking in three runs, including two with a homer.

Cap Peterson's three-run homer climaxed a six-run, eighth-inning uprising that carried San Francisco past Cleveland 10-8. Bobby Knoop rapped three hits in California's 6-1 triumph over the Chicago Cubs.

The Los Angeles Dodgers took advantage of five Baltimore errors and seven bases on balls for an 8-4 victory over the Orioles in a night game at Miami.

One Ohioan Wins But Three Lose In Golden Gloves

KANSAS CITY (AP) — One Ohioan won but three lost in the finals of the 39th National Golden Gloves boxing championships Friday night.

John North, 17, of Cincinnati, National AAU runner-up last year, dethroned Mell Miller for the 118-pound title.

In the night's best fight for prolonged effort and continuous punching, 25-year-old William Douglas Jr. of Columbus, the 1963 champion, was edged by Joseph Hopkins of Salt Lake City for the 160-pound crown.

Two Clevelanders, John Griffin in the 175-pound class and James Parks at 147, lost decisions in the finals.

Griffin lost to ring-wise Gerald Pate of Milwaukee, and Parks dropped a split decision to Detroit's Hedgeman Lewis.

Cleveland's Earl Averette was outboxed by Clay Hodges of Los Angeles in the semi-finals in the heavyweight division.

The Cleveland team finished fourth in the competition.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Today could be "D" Day in the 44th state high school basketball tournament.

"D" for Dayton Chaminade and Dixie, a pair of Montgomery County schools bidding to become the Class AA and A scholastic cage champions of Ohio.

But two Northwestern Ohio powers, once-beaten Toledo Libbey and all-winning Rossford, which sits in Wood County just outside the Glass City, have little aspirations of their own.

The four schools, last survivors of the 417 AA clubs and 449 A quintets that started the long 1965-66 campaign four months ago, needed just one more triumph today to cover themselves with glory.

Chaminade turned back tough Warren Harding 68-60 and Libbey ended Cinderella Lancaster's ball, 60-52 in the AA action Friday night.

In the afternoon, Dixie rallied to overcome Rittman of Wayne County 56-46 and Rossford, the only unbeaten team in the state with a flashy 26-0 record, shook off outclassed Southeastern (Ross) 71-49.

The small school title was to be decided at 2 p.m. with the larger schools in a 7:30 p.m. showdown.

One thing was certain in the AA clash. Either the city of Toledo was finally going to nail its first championship or Chaminade would become the first parochial school to ever cop the crown.

Dixie, which won the title in 1962 when current Coach Columbus Hines was at the helm, against Rossford it had with faced much the same problem Rittman—the Bulldogs have a strong height advantage.

Both games were expected to be run-and-shoot matches since none of the quartet utilized control basketball in Friday's semi-finals.

Libbey and Chaminade both are 25-1 as is Dixie. Coach Jim Turvene's Eagles were favored to lasso the Cowboys because of twin guards Jim and Jerry Gottschall, rated two of the finest backcourt performers seen at St. John Arena in a long time.

Chaminade also looked for more production from center Gary Arthur who was limited to a season low of nine points. Arthur, averaging 19 a game all season, was plagued by foul trouble. His previous low was 14.

The Eagles also found some welcome help Friday from reserve Mick Bockrath, a sometimes starter who came off the bench to spark the attack.

Bockrath finished with 14 but got 12 of those vital points in the second half. The 6-foot-3 senior delivered five straight points in a fourth quarter spurt that pulled Chaminade safely away from the Panthers after Warren trailed by only 56-55 with 3:36 remaining.

Coach John Gysegem's Warren quint was handicapped by the ineffectiveness of star center Ed Smith who tallied only five while playing with a broken finger.

Toledo unveiled one of the flashiest competitors in 6-2 Joe Cooke, a second team All-Ohio selection, who drilled in 29 points on a wide assortment of shots.

Unheralded Lancaster, which finished only third in its own league and never figures to get this far, gave it a good try and practically played their taller foes even off the boards.

But Libbey, leading only 44-42 with 5:11 to go, went on a 12-2 spurt that sealed the verdict. Little Terry Webb, at 5-7 the smallest cager on the floor, led the losers with 18.

A crowd of 13,828 crammed St. John Arena for the night action while 13,763 watched the daytime doubleheader.

Dixie, with All-Ohio Larry Wilson canning 27 points, came from nine points back at halftime to oust Rittman. The Greyhounds switched to a pressing, man-to-man defense that completely rattled the taller Indians.

Rittman still led 37-35 after three quarters but Stan Olwine rammed in three straight baskets and Dixie was home free. Wilson, a senior averaging 24 a game, was almost unstoppable from close in hitting on soft jump shots despite a collapsing zone. He finished with 10 baskets in 14 attempts.

Rossford had more trouble disposing of Southeastern than the final count indicates. The towering Bulldogs led only 45-42 with six minutes left but turned in a sizzling 28 point fourth quarter to turn the fray into a rout.

Jim Penix, another All-Ohio star, led the drive with 10 points during one 14-tally spurt. The 6-4 senior netted 23 but was unimpressive, bucketing only five of 22 shots for a poor 22.7 per cent.

Doug Hill, a 5-11 sophomore was Southeastern's hero with nine baskets, most of them long jumpers, for 18 points before fouling out with 3:27 to play.

Clay Aiming To Be 1st To Drop Chuvalo

TORONTO (AP) — Cassius Clay isn't picking the round for a change but he is aiming to be the first to drop George Chuvalo, the iron-jawed Canadian champion, in their 15-round title fight Tuesday night.

"I look on Chuvalo as a measuring stick," said the undefeated 24-year-old heavyweight king (World Boxing Association territory not included) as he headed into his final sparring session today.

"Ernie Terrell couldn't put him down and needed 15 rounds to win," said Clay.

Terrell, of Chicago, won WBA recognition as world champion after the WBA stripped Clay of the crown for signing a return bout contract with Sonny Liston.

Clay and Terrell were set to meet here to settle the championship dispute but Terrell withdrew when the new contract terms reduced his guarantee.

Although this is Chuvalo's home town, the Ontario Boxing Commission, adhering to the WBA line, is not recognizing the fight as a title scrap.

The promoters then billed it as "The Battle of Champions."

Chuvalo, ranked 10th by the WBA and ninth by Ring Magazine, is not bothered by the non-title status here.

"If I beat Clay — and I'm confident I can do it — I'll be recognized as champion anyway," he said.

Although he has been whipped 11 times, the stocky, 6-foot-1, 200-pounder never has been felled or stopped by an opponent. He is a durable mauler with an astonishing ability to absorb punches and has strong skin that rarely cuts.

Despite the 27 knockouts to his credit on his 34-11-2 won-lost record, Chuvalo is not considered a strong puncher. He likes to wear down his opponents with body bashing.

"That softens 'em up," said George.

His big problem is to get with in Clay's long reach so he can bang away. The champion has fast feet and faster hands and Chuvalo's style is just perfect for him.

"I can get to him," said Chuvalo.

The odds still are 7-1 on Clay.

Pirates, Yanks Call Of Puerto Rico Trip

FT. MYERS — The two-day trip next week to Puerto Rico for the Pirates and Yankees was definitely called off Friday.

The two teams were scheduled to play there April 1 and 2. Instead, they will play the contests, both at night, at the Yankees' Stadium in Ft. Lauderdale on the same dates.

Failure of the Puerto Rican promoters to put up the guarantee in advance was given as the reason for calling off the contests. Both the Pirates and Yankees were to get $20,000 each—$10,000 a game.

Mercer Nails PIAA B Crown, C Won By Williamsburg

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A packed house of some 11,000 will be on hand tonight as Chester and Pittsburgh Schenley battle for the Class A PIAA basketball crown, a title neither school has ever won.

Chester will be making its fifth stab at the title. The eastern champ lost in the finals in 1954, 1955, 1957 and 1959.

Schenley is the first Pittsburgh entry in the finals since 1937.

All tickets were sold last week for the game in Pittsburgh Civic Arena. It will be televised live on a statewide network.

Sparkplug for Chester is 5-foot-9 Mike Marshall, a little playmaker who scored 58 points in one game this season to establish a Philadelphia Suburban Conference record. During the regular season he canned 514 points.

Marshall was voted to the second team in the Associated Press all-state scholastic balloting.

Another strong man for Chester is 6-foot-4 Ken Shamberger who hit 11 points last Wednesday against Reading in the eastern regional finals, grabbed 19 rebounds and blocked five shots. He won honorable mention in the AP voting.

Other Chester starters are 6-1 John McLean, 6-2 Walter Thomas and 6-2 Paul Williams.

Against Reading, the starting five played the entire game without relief.

Schenley floors a slightly taller squad. The biggest is 6-6 Ken Durrett, a junior who averaged 27.5 points during the regular season as Schenley rolled to its second straight Pittsburgh city title. He was picked on the AP's first team.

Against Pittsburgh Westinghouse he poured in 41 points, his high for the season; and against Uniontown in the western finals he hit 28.

Other Schenley probable starters are 5-9 Ed Gibson, 6-foot Jim Price, 6-1 Montel Brundage and 6-4 Marvin Snowden.

Chester is 25-1 for the season and Schenley is 18-2.

Chester lost to Chester St. James, Schenley lost to Mackin Catholic of Washington, D.C., in the Johnstown Holiday Tournament and bowed to Johnstown Bishop McCort, the PCIAA state champ.

'My Greatest Thrill,' Mercer Coach Beams

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Dick Buckley talked his victorious Williamsburg team out of throwing him into the shower but John Swogger was sopping wet in the Mercer dressing room and he didn't seem to mind it a bit.

"This is my greatest thrill, the greatest team I ever coached," said Swogger. "They were just great under pressure."

Mercer defeated Darby-Colwyn 55-52 in overtime to capture its first PIAA Class B basketball championship after Williamsburg thumped Jim Thorpe 89-55 to take the Class C title Friday night in the Civic Arena.

There was reason for jubilation in the Mercer dressing room. Three times in the last four years the Mustangs made it to the championship game but were turned back—twice by Darby-Colwyn.

Swogger's reference to pressure on Mercer came in the last seconds of regulation play and during the overtime period.

Mercer's Mont Mattocks sank two free throws in a one-and-one situation to tie the game 46-46 with 30 seconds left. Darby-Colwyn forged ahead by two in overtime but Bill Rhoads of Mercer tied it with a field goal, stole the ball and was fouled, then calmly sank two foul shots.

Larry Woods wrapped up the game for Mercer seconds later when he made two fouls.

"How would you like to stand in front of 7,000 people and shot fouls?" Swogger asked.

"The fouling was decisive," said coach Andy McBryde of Darby-Colwyn. "They made 23 of 27, we made 10 of 15. Our shooting hurt us, too. We just didn't put the ball in the basket. We played as good as ever defensively."

Williamsburg, paced by sharp shooting senior Bill Kagarise and ball-hawking Vince Appleman, used its height advantage to pile up a huge lead in beating Jim Thorpe.

"We knew they would be tough but their height killed us," said head coach Phil Rader of Jim Thorpe. "It's killed us all season. They killed us off the boards, they killed us in shooting."

"We met a better ball club," he said.

Kagarise dumped in 28 points for Williamsburg and Appleman, a tiger under the boards, chipped in with 23. Williamsburg opened a six point lead midway through the first quarter, then steadily drew away. They led 44-26 at the half.

Buckley, Williamsburg's head coach, said, "I told the team earlier in the week the team with the most desire would win. Everybody on the starting five played up to their greatest capabilities."

Williamsburg finished the season 25-0, Jim Thorpe 23-5. Mercer also finished with a perfect record, 28-0.

Giants Veto Miller As Players' Director

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — The San Francisco Giants have voted against Marvin J. Miller, steel union executive nominated to direct the players' association.

Catcher Tom Haller, the Giants player representative, announced the negative vote Friday but said he could not divulge the actual count.

Player representatives from all 20 major league clubs recently named Miller to the $5,000-a-year job which Judge Robert Cannon of Milwaukee turned down.

Haller said the vote tabulation will be by individual players and not by clubs.

Royals Seek 2nd Straight Over Celtics

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Cincinnati Royals and Boston Celtics resume their Eastern Division semifinal playoff series tonight — with the Royals holding a surprising one-game advantage over the perennial National Basketball Association champions.

Both coaches report their teams are ready for the second game of the best-of-five series.

Cincinnati gained an unexpected edge when the Royals won Wednesday's game, upsetting the Celtics 107-103 on Boston's home floor.

The Royals have beaten the Celtics four out of five games here this season, and including the first playoff game, have a 6-5 over-all edge.

The third game in the series will be played Sunday afternoon in Boston before a national television audience.

In the Western Division semifinals, the second game between the Baltimore Bullets and St. Louis Hawks will be played Sunday in Baltimore.

The Hawks also have managed an unexpected advantage, winning the first game 113-111 Thursday on Baltimore's home floor.

Baltimore is troubled by injuries. The Bullets are without Gus Johnson for the entire series because of torn ligaments. Kevin Loughery, nursing a sprained ankle, and Bailey Howell, suffering from a virus, are expected to play Sunday.

The Celtics, winner of the last nine Eastern Division titles, were dethroned as league champs this season by Philadelphia. Now, they're in danger of losing the NBA championship they've held for the last seven years.

Reds Release Pitchers Henderson, Galligan

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Pitchers Phil Henderson, a southpaw, and Dave Galligan, a right-hander, were released Friday from the Cincinnati Reds.

They were assigned to the Reds' minor league camp. Cincinnati still has to cut nine players in order to get down to the 28-player limit by opening day.

In Wrestling Finals

AMES, Iowa (AP) — Ohio State's Dave Reinbolt takes on Roger Mickish of Oklahoma tonight in the 167-pound finals of the 36th NCAA wrestling championships. Reinbolt is the Ohioan in the finals.

Dave Wickersham, who expects to be No. 1 man in the bullpen of the Detroit Tigers next season, is filling in a relief role for the Fellowship of Christian Athletics this winter. He works out of the Kansas City headquarters and makes speeches over a wide area.

Night Racing Set Monday At Waterford

Waterford Park will launch 197 nights of racing Monday at the oval near Newell, with post time 7:15.

Jockey Russ Applebee, top rider of the spring meet, won a hard-fought decision aboard Roy's Lite in the feature event at Waterford yesterday before 2,284 who braved inclement weather.

Roy's Lite, a 6-year-old brown gelding, and Conning Light, with Jockey Roman Sainz up, duelled for the lead throughout the 5 1/2-furlong race. Applebee, thrashing with his whip, finally got Roy's Lite home a half-length in front to pay $10.40 at the $2 win window.

Tres Charmante was third in the feature, which was run in 1:09 2-5 over a sloppy track.

Chance Gay, a 4-year-old colt, is favored to capture the $2,000 Tulip Time purse here this afternoon. A field of 10 good sprinters was scheduled to go in the six-furlong feature.

Reds Shake Up Infield To Give Helms Chance

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Because Cincinnati's All-Star pitching staff turned out to be a myth, the Reds have sacrificed superstar Frank Robinson to land Milt Pappas, a starter, and Jack Baldschun, a bullpen ace.

Little Don Heffner, Bill Witt's boy down through the years, has moved in to put the pieces together. Like his predecessor, Dick Sisler, Heffner also is engaged in a great infield experiment.

To make room for Tommy Helms, a highly respected rookie, Heffner is moving Pete Rose, the 1965 All-Star second baseman, to third. Deron Johnson, whose 130 runs batted in led the league, is moving to left field, Robinson's old position.

The success of these experiments depends on the ability of Helms to make the grade at second after a fabulous career in the minors. Tommy hit .319 in San Diego and .381 in 21 games with the Reds to earn a promotion.

Jim O'Toole must bounce back strong from that dismal 3-10 season (three wins over the Mets) if the Reds are to have solid pitching. This is true even though 20-game winner Jim (No Hit) Maloney has ended his long holdout and should be ready for opening day.

Heffner's starting order probably will include Maloney, Pappas (13-9 at Baltimore), Sammy Ellis (22-10) and O'Toole. Joe Nuxhall (11-4) will be limited to spot duty at the age of 37 and big Joey Jay (9-8) must prove that he can regain his old stuff.

Bill McCool (9-10), the master of the bullpen, is back after military service. He will find an able helper in ex-Phil Bialschun (5-8).

Heffner expects to continue to shift Gerd Coleman (.302) and Tony Perez (.260) at first depending on the opposition pitching. Leo Cardenas, a .287 hitter with power, will go all the way at shortstop. The Reds' new boss also plans to platoon Johnny Edwards and Don Pavlich, his two good-hitting catchers.

With Robinson gone to Baltimore, Vada Pinson is on his own. Thier long-time friendship caused many critics to complain of cliques on the old Reds.

Pinson had a fine year last season with a .305 average, 22 homers and 94 runs batted in. Johnson in left, Pinson in center and Tommy Harper (.257) in right will be the regular outfield.

Prober In Senate Plans Look Into Police Wiretap

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Senate subcommittee investigator plans to go to Pennsylvania next week to look into allegations of illegal wiretapping by the state police.

A subcommittee spokesman said Friday the investigator would talk with many people while in Pennsylvania.

The same investigator also will take up "some unanswered questions" on alleged wiretapping in Pennsylvania by the Internal Revenue Service and other federal agencies, the spokesman said.

He said it was too early to tell whether the Pennsylvania matter would be added to the subcommittee's agenda. The group has been probing wiretapping for several months.

Sen. Joseph Clark, D-Pa., has criticized Republican Gov. William Scranton's handling of the state police wiretapping controversy.

Clark raised the possibility the subcommittee would investigate the state police issue.

Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., said Friday that Clark's action was "just another political maneuver."

U.S. Steel Says Suit Is Without Any Basis Of Fact

PITTSBURGH (AP) — U.S. Steel Corp. says a $48 million suit filed against it by Wheeling Steel Corp. is "without any foundation in fact."

Wheeling filed the suit Thursday, accusing U.S. Steel of inducing Triangle Conduit & Cable Co., Inc. of New Brunswick, N.J., to breach its contract with Wheeling.

U.S. Steel said Friday it had in no way interfered with any business relations between Wheeling and Triangle.

Wheeling also filed a $12 million suit against Triangle.

Wheeling said it had supplied pipe and coupling to Triangle for more than 30 years and in 1963 had signed a 10-year contract with Triangle.

The suit against U.S. Steel said the firm "with full knowledge of Wheeling's contract with Triangle induced the breach or cooperated in securing it."

Uruguay often is called the "Purple Land" because of the purplish tinge of its tall prairie grasses.

QUESTION: What is the difference between a Great Dane and a Doberman Pinscher?

ANSWER: Both these breeds of dog have streamlined bodies with long slender legs, short coats of hair and ears which stand straight up with sharp points. The two breeds were both brought to modern development in Germany and both belong to the Working group of dog breeds.

But if similar in some ways, these breeds are dissimilar in others. The Great Dane is very large, standing two and a half feet high and weighing from 120 to 150 pounds. The Doberman is about two feet high, weighing 60 to 75 pounds. The Dane's muzzle is big and square. The Doberman's is long and narrow. Indeed, everything about the Doberman suggests speed; he is the second fastest dog, next to the greyhound. These differences are explained by the different jobs for which dangerous job great size and strength were essential. The Irish Wolfhound, Bulldog and Mastiff are among his ancestors. The Doberman was developed in the 1800's by Louis Doberman as a guard and police dog. Intelligence, speed and alertness were the needed qualities.

FOR YOU TO DO: Since few people hunt boars any more, ask yourself, what job is left for the enormous Great Dane to attend to? Our picture gives one answer: these giants are friendly and amiable, with a particular loyalty and fondness for children. They fit naturally into the job Nanny had in the story Peter Pan.

Hints from Heloise

— By Heloise Cruse —

Dear Gals: Cosmetologists write that baby oil which is very inexpensive is wonderful for cleaning your face!

Imagine that! Pour some on your fingers, and rub it on your face. Then (I learned the real secret) take a wash rag and run hot water over it, wring out well, then use this fabulous hot cloth to wipe your face.

Even if a woman uses cold cream, along with some facial tissues, to cleanse her face, she could test this method by applying the baby oil to her face after she has tried her old method and then wash with a hot cloth.

If the cloth is white (she could use the end of a bath towel or T-shirt), she will see exactly how much her old method misses. All the soil will show on the white cloth.

Try it, gals.

What do you have to lose?

HELOISE.

DEAR HELOISE: My husband suggested a way to clean under the plastic circle, or dialing ring, on the telephone.

Just fold a pipe cleaner in half, and dip folded part in detergent. Work it around under the ring until the dust is loosened, then use another folded pipe cleaner to dry the surface.

Works like magic.

SALLEE B.

DEAR HELOISE: The first place I turn to in my paper is your column.

This morning I had what I thought was a very original idea!

Knitted tops (T-shirt type blouses) often shrink and get too short (from frequent washing and drying in a dryer) to stay inside shorts or slacks.

I ran a piece of cording (heavy string could be used) through the hem of the knitted top, and drew the cording tight, tied it, tucked the tie inside, adjusted the fullness, and it has a wonderful blousy effect.

It eliminates that uncomfortable feeling of a top that's half-in-half-out.

LETTER OF LAUGHTER

DEAR HELOISE: My dishes are stacked and waiting, floors not yet swept, but I washed one end of the table so I could write to you.

A READER.

DEAR HELOISE: Here's a tip I think all the gals will like: I had so much trouble getting my hair-do to stay as I wanted it, 'til one morning I got the bright idea of putting a thin hairnet over my hair, and arranging it just as I wanted it with the pointed end of my comb, and then spraying it with my favorite hair spray.

I kept it on for about five minutes — or until the spray had dried — then removed the net. It sure works, and I thought I'd share this with others, as it keeps my hair just the way I want it, and it stays that way all day.

Keep up your column. I love it!

C. P.

A great idea, especially for us working gals.

HELOISE.

DEAR HELOISE: I clip cartoons, jokes, Heloise hints, etc., and save them in a folder.

When I send a get-well card to a friend in the hospital, I enclose a dozen or more of these clippings just for fun.

They always get comments and generally are shared with the hospital roommate, nurses, and others.

Tableau At Columbus Dinner

McIlwain, Reams Shake, Then Swing At Rhodes

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Harry H. McIlwain and Frazier Reams Jr. shook hands and came out swinging — at Gov. James A. Rhodes.

That was the tableau at an Americans for Democratic Action, Central Ohio Chapter, Roosevelt Day Dinner here Friday night featuring the two contenders for nomination in the Democratic primary to run against Rhodes in November.

State Rep. McIlwain of Cincinnati and State Sen. Reams of Toledo, as they did last time their campaign paths crossed a couple of weeks ago in Washington Court House, threw all their verbal jabs at the incumbent chief executive.

And what must have been some of their Sunday punches too.

McIlwain said Rhodes' administration is characterized by lack of leadership, and procrastination, "smokescreened from the people by a flying circus."

If the people were told the truth, McIlwain said, "we could beat this unbeatable God who is a master of flim-flam and sleight of hand."

The Cincinnati attorney said the Republican governor specializes in multimillion-dollar promises involving bridges, stadiums and so on; a policy of extensive, unnecessary travel — "and send the bill to the people."

McIlwain deplored Republican accusations that Democratic Congressmen Michael Kirwan and Robert Sweeney bear blame for failure of Ohio to win a proposed federal atomic laboratory.

Rather, he said, it was a result of Rhodes' "neglect and procrastination."

"We failed because we have failed to attack the problem of higher education with anything other than bricks,"

Reams chimed in to the effect that Ohio has had "no leadership in the last three years, no program to plan for the future."

The Toledo candidate said "we are struggling with the problems of yesterday."

"The fundamental problem of today," said the youthful legislator, "is that we need the youthful approach to government."

Soviet Party Congress To Open Tuesday

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Communist party congress is expected to put a few cleanup touches on the tarnished image of Stalin. But Communist sources doubted it will reach any significant conclusions on other matters.

The congress, which opens next Tuesday, is expected to revise the party's line on Stalin, crediting him with some good. But it will still blame him for much evil as well, the sources said.

Meanwhile, it was learned that plays critical of the dictator who died in 1953 will not be shown in Moscow theaters for at least the next two weeks.

Articles in the Soviet press have indicated that Stalin, an unmentionable name here for nearly a decade, will be returned to Soviet history books.

It is expected that he will be praised for leading the Soviet Union in an era when it advanced from a backward country to a modern industrial state.

Communist sources have said that the party's first secretary, Leonid I. Brezhnev, will make references to Stalin and former Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev in his speech to the congress, but in terms as unsensational as possible.

It appeared likely that Khrushchev, who unveiled many of Stalin's crimes at the party congress in 1956, might be criticized for pushing de-Stalinization too far and indicting a whole era of Soviet history rather than just Stalin himself.

The congress — the Soviet party's 23rd — is also expected to deal with economic development, enunciate support of North Viet Nam and issue a call for Communist unity.

The Chinese Communist party has announced it will boycott the Congress. Relations between the Soviet Union and China have gone from bad to worse in recent weeks. So far, only the parties of Albania, Japan and New Zealand have followed China in the boycott.

The party congress ended on Oct. 31, 1961 and although the Soviet party's rules say a congress must be called at least every four years, this year's meeting comes five months after the deadline.

The delay was interpreted by some informed observers in Moscow as a sign of disagreements last year among the collective leadership that succeeded Khrushchev 17 months ago. Internal issues were said to have been involved.

Johnson is considered certain to sign it into law, although neither he nor Humphrey gave it any official support during its consideration by Congress.

The bill's sponsors said the administration was active behind the scenes and, in fact, helped smooth the way for the takeover of some Northwest Washington land long owned and highly prized by the Navy.

The 10-acre tract on which the residence will be built is a part of the Naval Observatory grounds on Massachusetts Avenue in the heart of the capital's embassy section. The chief of naval operations lives on the grounds.

The bill authorizes up to $750,000 for construction and furnishing of the vice president's residence. But sponsors said they were hopeful it would not require the full amount.

They said that only $45,000 would be asked for it in the next year, to be spent on architects' plans and some other preliminary expenses.

Some congressional sources said they considered it doubtful that Johnson would ask any construction money in his budget for the year starting July 1, 1967, which he will send to Congress next January.

They said they thought he would not ask funds if the Viet Nam war is still on at that time. Republicans and some Democrats at the Capitol took the position that a vice president's residence should not compete with essential budget items in wartime.

Until now, vice presidents always have provided their own homes.

Humphrey has continued to live in the home in suburban Chevy Chase, Md., which he bought when he first came to Washington as a senator in 1949.

Sen. A.S. Mike Monroney, D-Okla., original author of the bill, said he hoped there would be "a public design competition of unusual proportions" for the residence, with the nation's leading architects submitting their ideas.

He noted also that the bill provides for the acceptance of gifts to furnish the home.

Humphrey has continued to live in the home in suburban Chevy Chase, Md., which he bought when he first came to Washington as a senator in 1949.

Sen. A.S. Mike Monroney, D-Okla., original author of the bill, said he hoped there would be "a public design competition of unusual proportions" for the residence, with the nation's leading architects submitting their ideas.

Capture Governor's Award Lions Win Contest Again; Girls Tell Of Their Trip

For the second consecutive year, the East Liverpool Lions Club has captured the district governor's contest. Richard Walker, zone chairman, announced at the meeting Friday afternoon at the Travelers Hotel.

Edward Custer, president, will accept a plaque on behalf of the club at the district convention April 16 in Steubenville.

The award is based on points awarded in various categories, such as participation in state-wide projects, local activities, publicity, membership, attendance and number of new members enrolled.

Walker reminded fellow members that Friday is the deadline for making reservations for the district meeting.

THEIR experiences in visiting the United Nations and Washington were described by Sally Bennett and Barbara Jackson, ELHS students who attended a U.N. seminar and visited the national capital as delegates from the First Church of Christ on a tour sponsored by the Ohio Society of Christian Churches.

After attending a session of the Senate, the girls said they were amazed at "how disorganized it seems," explaining how people wandered in and out of the chamber throughout the session.

The girls were in a group that chatted with Sen. Stephen Young and visited Sen. Frank Lausche's office. They also met and talked with Sen. Robert Kennedy of New York and had glimpses of Sen. Ted Kennedy of Massachusetts and Sen. Everett Dirksen of Illinois.

The Washington tour also included a visit to the Soviet embassy, where they saw a film on Soviet life and were given English language copies of the Moscow News, a newspaper, and "Soviet Life," a magazine.

IN THE visit to U. N. headquarters, they attended several lectures and toured the building and also were given an opportunity for sight-seeing and attending a Broadway musical, Miss Jackson pointed out.

The girls were introduced by the Rev. E. C. Traylor, program chairman.

No nominations for office were made from the floor. Custer reminded members nominations will be open April 1 and April 8, with the election scheduled April 15.

Ernest Lowe, director, reported on the minstrel show to be presented tonight at 8 at Westgate School. Fred Kane and Vincent Maola are co-chairmen.

Don't Start Packing, Humphrey Vice President's Home Won't Be Built Till '68

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress has voted to provide an official residence for the vice president but Hubert H. Humphrey would be well advised not to start packing for a while.

Sponsors of the bill authorizing construction of the residence said it would be two years at the least before it could be built.

Some said it was highly doubtful the home would be completed in time for Humphrey to occupy it during his present term as vice president. The term ends Jan. 20, 1969.

The Senate sent the bill to President Johnson Friday, completing legislative action on it by voice vote acceptance of House amendments to an original Senate measure.

Johnson is considered certain to sign it into law, although neither he nor Humphrey gave it any official support during its consideration by Congress.

The bill's sponsors said the administration was active behind the scenes and, in fact, helped smooth the way for the takeover of some Northwest Washington land long owned and highly prized by the Navy.

The 10-acre tract on which the residence will be built is a part of the Naval Observatory grounds on Massachusetts Avenue in the heart of the capital's embassy section. The chief of naval operations lives on the grounds.

The bill authorizes up to $750,000 for construction and furnishing of the vice president's residence. But sponsors said they were hopeful it would not require the full amount.

They said that only $45,000 would be asked for it in the next year, to be spent on architects' plans and some other preliminary expenses.

Some congressional sources said they considered it doubtful that Johnson would ask any construction money in his budget for the year starting July 1, 1967, which he will send to Congress next January.

They said they thought he would not ask funds if the Viet Nam war is still on at that time. Republicans and some Democrats at the Capitol took the position that a vice president's residence should not compete with essential budget items in wartime.

Until now, vice presidents always have provided their own homes.

He noted also that the bill provides for the acceptance of gifts to furnish the home.

Glasses Lead To Discovery Of 2 Bodies

RUSSELLVILLE, Ky. (AP) — The chance discovery of a broken pair of bifocals near an abandoned rural church has led to the solution of the three-months old mystery of the disappearance of a banker and his daughter.

The glasses, found by a man on an afternoon walk last Sunday, became the first tangible clue in the search for Edgar C. Harper, 81, and his daughter, Eustice Givens, 49.

The search was renewed Friday after the bifocals were identified as those worn by Mrs. Givens, who disappeared with her father Dec. 11 from his home at Lewisburg, a town of 500 residents near the Tennessee border in southwest Kentucky.

Shortly after a search party began combing the area where the spectacles were found, Vane Brown, a farmer from Quality, Ky., discovered the bodies.

"Mr. Givens and me was walking about 10 feet apart when I seen a leg sticking out from under some boards," Brown said. "I yelled for the sheriff and then Mr. Givens come over and seen his wife."

Logan County Sheriff Gene Sweatt, a member of the search party, said he walked over and saw the bodies covered with brush and boards in a wooded area near an old cemetery.

An autopsy is scheduled today at the University of Kentucky Medical center.

State Police detective G.C. McMillen said a search of the area after the bodies were found revealed no new clues.

The disappearance of Harper and Mrs. Givens baffled police and shocked the community. Mrs. Givens had been staying with her father regularly. Harper, president of the Lewisburg Banking Co. and owner of several oil wells, had been under treatment for heart and blood ailments.

Givens said he arrived at Harper's home on the morning of Dec. 12 and found both missing. There were no signs of a struggle.

Harper's wallet was discovered along a road near Russellville Jan. 3, but a searching party of 200 failed to find any trace of the bodies.
